

UNION OF THE HEARTS AT RIS

By Jafferali Mussa, HS Values Teacher

Our school emphasizes the union of hearts, but how do we put the philosophy of union of hearts into practice?

Union of hearts is a simple term; however, it is the most important aspect of humanity. Our students practice union of the hearts on a daily basis at RIS, from raising money for the less fortunate people both in Thailand and around the world to giving love and compassion to the local communities around Minburi area.

The caring nature of our students was self evident when the Grade 10 visited a local day care/pre-school in the Minburi area. Our students showered the preschool children with so much love and kindness, looking beyond any boundaries, such as the socio-economic, religious or age differences between the two groups.

The mutual love and happiness that was shared between the two groups was such a heart warming experience for all of us. As globalization transcends beyond our borders at an extremely fast pace, our students are advocates of justice, kindness and appreciation of people of various different cultures and religions in a world dominated by big businesses and financial motivations.

We are certainly proud of our students and confident that they will make a difference in the lives of people all around the world, regardless of the cultural and religious diversity. After all, it is this diversity that makes our mosaic so beautiful.
